

Conflict of Interest or Commitment

The Mission of Palmer College of Chiropractic (College) is communicated through core institutional documents describing our Identity, Vision, Values, Practice Paradigm, Philosophy Statement and other essential elements of this organization, which reinforce our role as The Trusted Leader in Chiropractic Education. One of these core institutional documents is the College's Code of Ethics, comprised of Ethical Principles and Standards of Conduct. Each Ethical Principle is accompanied by Standards of Conduct, which provide further elaboration and context to the Ethical Principles. Although tailored to the roles and responsibilities of faculty, instructional staff, and administrators working in academic affairs, these Principles and Standards of the Code of Ethics outline expected behavioral standards for all College employees.

USE OF COLLEGE NAME AND RESOURCES

The College's name, seal, brand, trademarks, and other insignia and resources are important assets that may only be used to further its mission and institutional interests. An employee using the College's name or its resources, without written permission, to advance his/her own private interest represents a COI and is prohibited.

In connection with external activities, employees may identify themselves as affiliated with the College by listing their College titles. In so doing, employees must not imply the College supports, sponsors or endorses those activities.

This Policy does not prohibit employees from disclosing or discussing subject matters such as their wages, benefits, performance evaluations, employee contact information, discipline or other terms and conditions of employment with other employees or third parties, such as union representatives or governmental agencies concerned with workplace matters, as permitted under Section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act (refer to the College's Confidential Information Policy).

Identification and Disclosure

DISCLOSURE OF CONFLICTS

The College requires disclosure of any COC or COI (whether actual, potential or perceived). It is the responsibility of the employee to self-disclose actual, potential or perceived conflicts of interest and/or commitment.

To the extent possible, disclosure of an actual, potential or perceived conflict, if applicable, must occur prior to an employee initiating any related external relationship or activity.

Disclosure and management or elimination of conflicts is required whether the non-College relationship or activity is with a for-profit entity, a not-for-profit entity or a charitable foundation.

All employees are required to either acknowledge they have no actual, potential or perceived COC's or COI's or disclose the existence of such conflicts in writing in the following manner:

1. Such acknowledgements or disclosures should be made in writing on a form (Conflict of Interest Disclosure Form available on the College Portal) designated by the College;
2. Completed forms are to be maintained by the Office of Human Resources;
3. Disclosures should include a description of the nature and extent of the conflict; and

4. Disclosures are to be made as soon as the employee knows of the conflict, and then annually thereafter as requested by the College for as long as the conflict continues to exist.

To the extent practical, employees shall avoid any external relationships or activities identified by the employee as posing a conflict until the conflict has been evaluated and a decision communicated in writing back to the employee by the College.

When a supervisor becomes aware of a COC or COI that an employee has not disclosed, the supervisor shall notify the Office of Human Resources and require the employee to submit a written disclosure as required by this Policy.

UNCERTAINTY REGARDING CONFLICT IDENTIFICATION

Employees are expected to make a reasonable effort to determine whether their external relationships and/or activities create, or appear to create, such conflicts and disclose them. The existence of a conflict is not always clear-cut. When an employee is uncertain about whether or not an external relationship or activity poses an actual, potential or perceived COC and/or COI, the employee should report it in accordance with the “Disclosure of Conflicts” section of this Policy.

When a supervisor is uncertain about whether or not an employee’s external relationship or activity poses an actual, potential or perceived COC and/or COI, the supervisor should report it in accordance with the “Disclosure of Conflicts” section of this Policy.

Determination and Remedial Action

DETERMINATION OF CONFLICTS

The College shall review all disclosures and carefully evaluate all circumstances related to the disclosures of an actual, potential or perceived COC and/or COI before acting to approve or disapprove the relationships and/or activities disclosed.

If the College determines no actual, potential or perceived conflict exists, further review is unnecessary.

Where an actual, potential or perceived conflict exists, the College shall determine if the conflict:

1. Is acceptable to or can be resolved to the satisfaction of the College;
2. Requires a management plan; or
3. Must be eliminated.

REMEDIAL ACTION

At any point in the process of reviewing disclosures, the College may take prompt, appropriate remedial action to reduce or eliminate any actual, potential or perceived impact of any disclosed relationship or activity.

An employee may be asked to modify or terminate external activities if they are considered by the College to have a detrimental effect on the employee's obligations to the College or the interests of the College.

Conflict of Interest or Commitment Management Plans

When a conflict is identified, the College may require the development of a written management plan. Such a plan will specify how the individual will manage or resolve the conflict. Because each conflict may present unique circumstances, the content of each plan may vary.

A Conflict of Interest or Commitment Management Plan must be reviewed and approved annually for the duration of an employee's employment with the College as long as the conflict exists.

Reports

NOTIFICATION TO INTERNAL PARTIES

The Chief Compliance Officer will annually provide a detailed report of disclosures and associated resolutions to the Audit Committee of the Board of Trustees.
